

Introduction

Thank you for participating in the 2022 NACUBO Tuition Discounting Survey!

NACUBO has collected data on institutional grant awards for first-time, first-year undergraduates and all undergraduates and tuition and fee rates from four-year independent colleges and universities for nearly 30 years. This long trend line allows for the comprehensive analysis that has come to be associated with the Tuition Discounting Study (TDS), one of the most esteemed studies on discount rates in the nation. Our study's success has been built on hundreds of private nonprofit colleges and universities institutions like yours contributing data and insights on discounting practices on campus. We appreciate your time and effort and thank you in advance for your participation.

Data collection will close on November 29, 2022.

Your data will be kept confidential and will be reported in aggregate. Responses to open-ended questions will be kept confidential. No identifiable information will be shared; however, we may use some of your statements as quotes in the final report.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion

In addition, in light of the increasing focus on diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) in higher education, this year's TDS also includes questions on trends in enrollment by race/ethnicity, and opportunities to provide commentary on DEI-related issues on your campus. We ask that any commentary on DEI be provided by your school's senior-level administrators or any officials with on-campus responsibility for diversity-related initiatives.

Plan

It isn't uncommon to have several colleagues collaborate to complete the survey. You may use a PDF of the survey instrument for your staffs' planning purposes. This will help prevent you from unintentionally locking yourself out of your survey through an accidental submission.

More Details

All institutions that participate in the 2022 TDS will receive: (1) access to the TDS preliminary results, which will be released in March 2023; (2) a complimentary copy of the final report in April 2023. Participating NACUBO member institutions will also receive free access to peer analysis data through the NACUBO Online Benchmarking tool.
