Stacy Pearson (CPA, MPA) is Boise State University’s vice president for finance and administration. In this capacity, she serves on the President’s executive leadership team and manages the financial health and planning activities for the University. Pearson serves as a leader in developing opportunities and initiatives that advance the mission of the university by strengthening the relationship between fiscal and academic policy, integrating strategic planning with fiscal decisions and providing resources for investment in improvements and new initiatives university-wide.

As vice president, Pearson is responsible for the coordination of financial and administrative operations, including accounting, financial reporting, treasury, real estate, business development, budget and planning, purchasing, contracting, tax and regulatory compliance, human resource services, information technology and the Taco Bell Arena. During her tenure, Pearson has also supervised campus planning and facilities operations, the development of the campus master plan and the successful completion of the most aggressive building campaign in the University’s history that included the addition of over 1.5 million square feet of University space. Prior to her 2004 appointment to vice president for finance and administration, Pearson served for 8 years as the University’s associate vice president for finance and administration.

In addition, Pearson plays a key role in the State of Idaho’s higher education financial and administrative initiatives. She is an active participant and presenter for regional and national higher education professional organizations including NACUBO, the Education Advisory Board and the Association of Public and Land-Grant Universities, and also serves as a commissioner for the Capitol City Development Corporation, Boise’s urban renewal agency. Stacy was appointed as the Chair for NACUBO’s Council on Comprehensive/Doctoral Institutions starting in August 2015.

Pearson received her bachelor’s degree in Business Administration from the University of Idaho and master of Public Administration degree from Boise State University. She is a licensed certified public accountant in the state of Idaho. Pearson was named the 2013 Idaho Woman of the Year by the Idaho Business Review.
